One of Four That Came Up in Tombs Court Designated as a Test.

To Assail Brooks Law in Higher Court on Ground of Unconstitutionality.

The twenty-six cases resulting from raids in the loan shark crusade which are awaiting trial in Special Sessions to be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, it developed yesterday, by means of one of four that came up in the Tombs court and was designated by counsel as a test case to go before the higher tribunal. This action on the part of the money lenders follows the decision of the Court of Appeals handed down on Tuesday, which-sustained the judgment of the Justices of Special Sessions in the case of Emma Blumberg, the first of the cases to come to trial there of the arrests made under direction of Assistant District Attorney Franklin S. Brooks on the authority of the law he framed when a legislator covering usurious interest and known as section 314 of the banking laws. It is this law that will be assailed on the ground of unconstitutionality before the upreme Court, and pending decision all the cases may be in abeyance. Some of them, however, are expected to accept the ruling of the Court of Appeals and change their pleas to guilty with applica-tion for elemency.

The test case came up as one of four remaining in the Magistrate's court and to be hurried on to Special Sessions, it was understood, with the others covered by the ruling of the Court of Appeals.

LAYS HIGH PRICES TO 'CHANGE.

awaon Says People Pay for Overcapitalisation of Stock.

Thomas W. Lawson of Boston in his exposition of "The Remedy" in Every-body's this month tackles the high cost of living and finds that it can all be laid at the door of the Stock Exchange. Stock watering or overcapitalization Mr. Lawson asserts is the cause of high prices.

The problem of high prices, says Mr.
Lawson, centres in the $80,000,000,000 of capital stock and bonds in this country. Of this amount over $40,000,000,000 is counterfeit, according to him. He says: "This forty billions represented when issued no accumulated labor—body, mind machinery or capital labor. It repre-sented nothing but a trick, and this forty billions fictitious capital is largely owned by 10,000 people who every year receive $200,000,000 interest for it." It is through the Stock Exchange, says Lawson, that the trick, as he calls to Attorney-General Carmody an answer to the charges made by Marcus Braun in the latter's petition to have the trust company's charter annulled.

Braun, who was once a special inspector of immigration and is now the publisher of Fair Play, has alleged that the trust company is backed by the Hungarian dovernment and appeals to Hungarian immigrants to use it for forwarding funds to Hungary. He also alleged that the company discourages Hungarians from becoming citizens.

After denying these charges Mr. Piralitzer writes that in the past appeals to people of a given nationality have usually been made by so-called private banks and adds:

"The long list of failures, the record of bankruptcy and of the criminal courts, the large losses sustained by innocent depositors—combine to portray a heartrending picture of the operations of those who have sought to prey upon the helpless foreigner.

"Nor is it surprising that those whose business it had been to monopolize a field in respect of a particular class of foreigners should antagonize and seek to destroy institutions established to insure safety, having a larger capital

It is through the forty billions of counterfeit capital the the forty billions of counterfeit capital has come into existence has been added and by it there has been alled to existence has been worked "and by it there has been alled exact year to the project of the people's necessities $200,000,000 more than should be added."

The meeting first ratified the action of the officers of the company in entering into an agreement with the Boston and Providence and the Old Colony railroads for the electrification and four tracking of the Boston and Providence railroad, including the removal of all grade crossings. In reference to this agreement President Mellen said:

This agreement provides for the mortgaging of the Boston and Providence road in the sum of $8,000,000, which sum is to be expended in the elimination of grade crossings, completing the four tracking of the line and its electrification. The agreement provides for a sinking fund which will ultimately retire the principal sum of the bonds at their maturity.
